

KEEPING THE FAITH IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

AN EVENT FOR PARENTS, GRANDPARENTS, AND EDUCATORS

Arizona state academic standards expect public school students to know about Jesus and his teachings. Now you can discover how to help others in your community move from fear to freedom when it comes to strengthening public schools' ability to teach the Judeo-Christian tradition to a new generation.

You will discover:

1. What your state academic standards expect when it comes to teaching about the Bible and the Judeo-Christian tradition.
2. How you can help your school teach students the religious aspects of Thanksgiving, Christmas (including Christmas carols) and Easter.
3. Federal and Supreme court rulings that protect teaching public school students about the Bible and Christianity.
4. How you can help your school honor students' religious expression in class work, homework, and on campus.
5. How to connect with other like-minded Christians at your school.

You and your friends will hear inspiring stories from around the country of public schools that are restoring Christmas, teaching about the life of Jesus, and stocking their library shelves with Bibles!

At the event, you will receive a summary of Arizona academic standards indicating where the Bible and Christianity can be taught!

What Others Are Saying

"I look forward to the material I receive during the school year from Gateways. Its information is reliable, refreshing, and very practical."
Tracey Bailey, National Teacher of the Year

"Before we knew about Gateways, we prayed for the teachers, but now we are also helping them understand what they can do in the classroom!"
Tammy H. public school mom

"My attendance at a Gateways event truly changed my life. Now, I'm comfortable opening my Bible and adding to the textbook's discussion of Ruth, Naomi, Abraham, Moses and other heroes of the Old Testament. I never would have dared to do that before my involvement with Gateways."
Kim S. elementary school teacher

Event Speaker:

Eric Buehrer founder and president of Gateways to Better Education. He writes and lectures extensively on the subject of religion and public education. His audiences include public school parents, classroom teachers, student teachers at schools of education, pastors, and youth workers. Mr. Buehrer's work has been twice featured as the cover story of Focus on the Family Magazine, and on BreakPoint with Chuck Colson. His books and materials have been endorsed by Dr. D. James Kennedy, Rabbi Daniel Lapin, and Josh McDowell. He has appeared on numerous radio and television programs including CBS This Morning, The Coral Ridge Hour, The 700 Club, Point of View, and Family Life Today. He and his wife, Kim, have three daughters who attend public schools.

Gateways to Better Education exists to help public school parents, teachers, administrator, and school board members move from fear to freedom so that they can confidently help students learn about Judeo-Christian history, thought, and values.
